About Chandigarh

Chandigarh, the City Beautiful, is a modern planned city located in North India. After Partition, the large North western province of Panjab was divided into East & West Panjab with the partition line leaving its erstwhile capital, Lahore in West Panjab. The city of Chandigarh was conceptualized to serve as the capital of East Panjab and was planned by a team of architects headed by the famous French architect, Le Corbusier with its foundation stone laid in 1953. After the reorganisation of states, Chandigarh was designated as a Union Territory and also the shared Capital of the states of Panjab & Haryana.

Picturesquely located in the foothills of the Shivaliks ranges, the city is internationally renowned for its architecture and urban design. The city abounds with tree-lined, wide boulevards, parks and green spaces as well as the tranquil Sukhna Lake. Some of its famous parks are the iconic Rock Garden designed by Nek Chand, the Zakir Rose Garden, Leisure Valley, Bougainville Garden, Shanti Kunj and the Garden of Fragrance.
